WE'RE FOR AMERICA! AMERICANS!

It is not necessary for a man to have brains in order to smoke cigarettes. To those who are disposed to doubt this assertion of an important question of scientific fact, we cite the case of an Indianapolis man who shot out the contents of his skull a few days ago, but continued to puff a cigarette while the surgeons wrestled with his wound.

The Kentucky House talks of unseating a number of Democratic members and the Senate talks of unseating enough Republican members to preserve the parity when it comes to a joint convention. There are other ways in which legislators can earn their salaries and elect Senators at the same time, but some of the Bluegrass statesmen seem to have forgotten the combination.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

Does it mean to insinuate, even in the remotest degree, that a modern politician would do anything that was not perfectly fair and high toned and honorable?

Nay, nay, neighbor; there may be such cattle in the Columbus pen, but there's no "black sheep" browsing in the barn yard at Frankfort. Why, there isn't a "politician" in either branch of the Kentucky Legislature, Democrat or Republican, who would carry off a four-foot buzz-saw—while it was in motion!

"Of late numerous untruthful stories concerning the commission of crime in Kentucky have been given currency by unprincipled correspondents, all to the great detriment of the state. I recommend, in order to restrain these irresponsible persons, that a law should be passed providing severe punishment of all persons who wilfully state, deliver or transmit to any manager, editor, reporter or other employee of any newspaper, magazine, publication, periodical or serial, any falsehood concerning any person, corporation or community.—Governor Bradley's Message.

The purpose of the Governor is praiseworthy, says The Times-Star, but great care will have to be taken in framing the proposed statute to prevent injustice to a deserving class of citizens, the news agents and correspondents scattered over the state who honestly aim to keep their employers fully and promptly informed of all events in their respective neighborhoods. Errors in the collection of news are inevitable. Evidence of reasonable care and willingness to correct on the part of the newsgatherers should protect them from vexatious prosecution by shysters whose livelihood largely depends on carelessly drawn libel laws. As for the sensation monger who invents newspaper fakes for money or notoriety, he is the enemy of both newspaper publishers and readers. More stringent laws for his suppression are needed in Kentucky as elsewhere.

FULL EXPLANATIONS

Were Not Made by Treasurer Long About That Deficit.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 17.—The report sent out to several Kentucky papers Thursday by George W. Long, the new state treasurer, as to the condition of Kentucky's finances, contains some misleading statements and does his predecessor an injustice. He says that by next September a deficit of $2,500,000 will exist.

He is probably correct in this statement, but he fails to complete his statement by adding that the sheriffs begin to pay in the revenue about September 1, and before November over $2,000,000 will have been paid in, thus reducing the alleged deficit to only $500,000.

BOND REFUSED.

The Office of Sheriff of Jefferson County May Be Declared Vacant.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Jan. 17.—Gov. Bradley Thursday refused to accept the bond of John R. Pfanz, sheriff of Jefferson county, which was filed with State Auditor Stone on January 11. The bond should have been filed on January 1. Pfanz did present one to County Judge Ritchie on that day, but it was refused, and he was unable to get another prepared until the 11th. Judge Ritchie accepted it and forwarded it to the auditor, who approved it two days ago and turned it over to Gov. Bradley with the above result, because of the delay in filing. It is probable the office will be declared vacant.

Gets the Next National Democratic Convention.

The 7th of July Decided Upon by the Committee as the Date.

Twenty-Nine Ballots Were Necessary to Decide on the Windy City as the Place. At No Time Did Cincinnati Receive More Than Twelve Votes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—July 7 has been decided upon as the date for holding the national democratic convention.

The vote on the selection of the date for holding the national convention was 32 to 18.

At 3 o'clock the banquet room of the Arlington was thrown open to all who had cards of admission, and in a few minutes every seat in the place was filled.

At 3:30 Chairman Harrity rapped for order, and directed the roll of states to be called, so as to know definitely the cities which desired to have the convention, stating that then those cities would be called in their alphabetical order so as to have the claims of each presented, for which purpose one-half hour was to be allowed.

The first state to be reached having a competitive city was Illinois, and on its behalf the city of Chicago was proposed. In due succession came St. Louis, New York and Cincinnati.

Judge Goodrich, of Chicago, was put forward as the spokesman for that city.

The claims of Cincinnati were presented by Messrs. Ingalls and Follett. Mr. Ingalls said Cincinnati wanted to invite the republican convention there but the price had been a little high (laughter). Cincinnati, he said, had the best hall in the world for political conventions. It could seat 6,000 people as comfortably as the audience was seated in this hall to-day.

Cincinnati has also got the transportation. As to hotel accommodations, Mr. Follett told the story of the Cincinnati hotel-keeper who was asked how many people he could accommodate. "Well," said he, "if they come from New England or New York I can accommodate about 100 people; but if they come from Kentucky and the bar room is large enough, I can take care of a 1,000." (Laughter). "We will entertain you so well," Mr. Follett continued, "that you will not like to lose an hour in sleep. You will wait till you get home for that." (Laughter.)

Speaking of the republican convention to be held in St. Louis, Mr. Follett said that he would not like to fish in waters muddied by the republicans. (Laughter). As to New York he said that was one of the finest places he had ever seen; but if the democratic delegates went there they would never have money enough to go there again.

In conclusion he said: "Come to Cincinnati and we will take such good care of you that your stay will be one pleasant day and you will be loath to return and will be sorry when the day comes to do it." (Laughter.)

Mr. J. Waldo Smith, president of the New York Grocers' association, was the first gentleman to present the claims of that city. His remarks were humorous and kept his audience in a continuous roar of laughter.

The democratic national convention will be held at Chicago on July 7. Such was the decision reached on the 29th ballot by the national committee Thursday night, after a spirited contest, in which Chicago won by a bare majority, with St. Louis only two votes behind.

It was practically a fight between the free silver forces on one hand and the hard money men on the other. This statement can not be taken as literally correct for several silver men finally voted for Chicago, while several other votes were cast for St. Louis by hard money men.

As a matter of fact, the vote which Chicago received was, as Mr. Smalley, of Vermont, expressed it, "a natural one," inasmuch as it was cast by the states lying within the group known as the middle west and the east. St. Louis' vote might also be called equally natural, since it came mainly from the southwest and the west.

The free silver men who were bitterly hostile to New York made St. Louis their rallying point and throughout the 29 ballots they were loyal to the city of their choice.

It was thought that Cincinnati might be the second choice of a sufficient number of members to secure the prize, but this hope was not realized. At no time during the day was Cincinnati a serious competitor, and at no time did she secure more than 12 votes. Chicago began with six votes, and it was not until the 14th ballot that she increased them to ten.

She remained practically at that figure until the nineteenth ballot, when her strength was increased to 13. Again she stood practically still until the twenty-seventh ballot, when her vote of 16 in the preceding ballot was increased to 20. At that time St. Louis, which had begun with 19, had 21 votes; New York had fallen to 3, and Cincinnati to 6. It was manifest that not only had it narrowed down to Chicago and St. Louis, but that Chicago's steadily increasing gains indicated her ultimate victory.

This came on the 29th ballot, when her vote of 21, in the 28th ballot, was increased by five, thus giving her a bare majority and leaving St. Louis with 24, while Cincinnati was reduced to one. New York's four votes on this ballot went to Chicago, as did also one of Cincinnati's.
